

NEW YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1, 1870.

The Murder of Mr. Nathan.

It seems as though, in the endeavor to clear away the mystery surrounding Mr. Nathan's murder, the reporters of New York had been given permission to soar to the loftiest height and to the lowest depth to which fancy's wing could wait them. I can imagine the Smiths, Browns, and Joneses of the various newspapers, hurrying in a sweat of intelligence, into editorial rooms, laying in triumph the huddled heaps of facts before managing editors, and being instantly directed to "write up" their accounts, and append to each a "theory." Reportorial invention was certainly never put to a severer test. Nearly every one of the Sunday and the daily papers has had a "theory" of its own. From a consideration of the various hypotheses, it might be imagined that the brood of reporters had been brought up in the shadow of the detective wing, and that the shell through which they picked their way into newspaper existence was circumstantial evidence. It is not often that full swing is given to the New York reporter. So much that comes to his mill turns out not to be grist, that when corn of a sufficiently criminal character does fall in his way, he must be excused for grinding it very small indeed. The murder of Mr. Benjamin Nathan, last Friday morning, was of this character, and the reporters fed upon it like oxalic acid on an ink spot. Let us try to appreciate, while we compassionate their efforts, admitting, at the same time, that it is a pity that they are not forbidden to weaken, with ill-considered theories of their own, the effect of the facts which they so industriously collect. There are some readers who like to think a little for themselves, and who, without overweighing discomf, could dispense with the suppositions which these gentlemen bountifully rain upon them.

Knowing that I can detail here no item of news of which the telegraph will not have informed you before this letter is printed, I shall attempt nothing more ambitious than a collection of such odds and ends as occur to me of gossip and reflection. Since the hour when the murder became known, the north side of Twenty-third street directly opposite the residence of the Nathan family has been occupied by curious gazers whose number sometimes swelled into a crowd, sometimes dwindled to a group. I believe that since the moment when the news of the crime became public scarcely an hour has passed without finding a bevy of inquisitive watchers, besides the police, stationed upon that opposite pavement. It is no figure of speech to say that the point slackened their speed in order to allow passengers to satisfy the hunger of their eyes. The same thing may be said of the cars. Whenever one of them came near the intersection of Twenty-third street and Broadway the passengers, with few exceptions, jumped up, and, as if actuated by one will, stuck their heads out of the windows, and riveted their eyes upon the spot that murder had put beyond the reach of the commonplace. The hour was one of joy and triumph to the policemen. It gave them a coveted pretext for using their "locusts," and for practising that sort of blackguardism which the protection of the blue coat and brass buttons renders safe. Strange as it may seem, respectable men were heard to abet the detestable conduct of the New York Sunday Mercury in casting suspicion upon Washington, Mr. Nathan's youngest son. The reason that the Mercury took the course which it did is simply that its reporter, in endeavoring to gather news at a rather late hour, was repulsed by Washington. The reporters of the Mercury are not pre-eminently distinguished for refined feelings, gentlemanly manners, or religious principle. The instructions which they receive from Mr. Whitney are not precisely such as would tend to fit them for the kingdom of heaven. But when they "go" for a piece of news their tenacity of purpose is wonderful, and the piece of news usually has to succumb. The Mercury reporter, however, called on Saturday at an hour when such intrusion was particularly repugnant to the family. During every one of the twenty-four preceding hours the house had been visited by a stream of "interviewers," and it would have been strange indeed if the crushed spirits of the mourners had not asked for a little rest. It was Mr. Washington Nathan through whom this request found expression, and whom, therefore, the Mercury selected as the victim of its spite. This accounts for the two columns of malicious perversion that on Sunday morning appeared upon the first page of the Mercury, and labored to fix the crime on Washington. That an unprincipled and filthy paper like the Mercury should do so ought not, perhaps, to cause much surprise; but that any respectable man of sense should take up such arguments as were used in the Mercury, and should endeavor to give them consistency, is a fact at once astonishing and painful. I have but little doubt that hundreds of people made up their minds yesterday that Washington Nathan was the murderer of his father. When that cruel suspicion deepened until it seemed to catch the blackness of fact, it was easy to imagine a series of causes equally consistent and just.

THE RAMIE PLANT.

Process for Refining the Fibre.

A great deal of interest is felt by our agricultural and mercantile readers in the new textile plant known as ramie, and a year or two ago single plants sold in this vicinity at the rate of one dollar each, but they have since been regarded by our planters rather as a curiosity than as an object of material interest. There being no reliable agencies provided for preparing the staple for market. We have already stated that Mr. Emile Lefranc, of this city, has recently patented a machine which has proved entirely successful in separating the fibre from the woody matter and outer bark, and to show that American ingenuity has been turned in the same direction in other quarters, we extract the following from a letter received by Mr. Lefranc from a gentleman residing in Brooklyn, N. Y.:

A BRILLIANT DISCOVERY.—Every man and woman in the land, whose locks have been touched with silver by time, or prematurely whitened, has reason to rejoice that PHALON'S VITALIA, OR SALVATION FOR THE HAIR, is numbered among the wonderful working products of this age of discovery. It is clear and free from sediment, while the shades of color it imparts are more natural than those produced by any other agent.

MR. WILLIAM W. CASSEY, the jeweller at No. 5 South Second street, has one of the largest and most attractive stocks of all kinds of Jewelry and Silverware in the city. He has also on hand a fine assortment of the American Western Watches. Those who purchase at this store at the present time are certain to get the worth of their money.

THE POOL LITTLE SUFFERER will be immediately relieved by using MRS. WINGLAW'S SOOTHING SYRUP for children teething. It softens the gums, reduces inflammation, cures wind colic, allays all pain, and gives the child quiet, natural sleep, from which it awakes invigorated and refreshed. Perfectly safe in all cases, as millions of mothers can testify.

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. REBECCA L. HOWELL.—In the death of this lady, which took place suddenly, on the 30th day of July, a loss has been sustained by a large circle, who deeply mourn her departure. Many have shared her hospitality, and been cheered by her genial and generous kindness. It is these who are conscious of the irreparable loss, and feel forsaken at her departure. They have many kind recollections of her good deeds, her cheerful benevolence, and her constant friendship. She possessed many good traits, noble characteristics, and shining virtues. She was for years a constant visitor at the prisons, and, without hope or expectation of reward in this world, administered comfort and relief to the unfortunate. Her benevolent labors in this direction were interrupted by the sad affliction of two of her children, who were prostrated by distressing sickness, requiring her constant attention. As her family cares and anxieties became more imperative, she gradually withdrew from the more prominent duties of society, leaving to those who were less incumbered with the cares and anxieties of home a good example of benevolence and self-sacrifice.

She was a kind neighbor, always ready to assist in sickness with cheerful alacrity, and very often at the sacrifice of her own comfort, forgetting her own ease for the good of others. Her well-provided table was ready at all times to dispense refreshment to the welcome visitor, without stint or that arbitrary ceremony which so often mars hospitality. At her genial board preferences of rank were forgotten: the poor and the rich met together, and were made at ease by her cheerful and unostentatious disposition, feeling that their welcome was sincere. While she was engaged in her family duties, without warning, the dread summons came. With calm and tranquil mind she summoned her family around her. With thoughts dwelling upon the mercy of her Maker, with firm belief in the merits of her Saviour, reclining in the arms of her affectionate husband, and surrounded by her sorrowing family, her spirit passed quietly away. First and Only Mortgage.

The Bonds are issued in $1000s, $500s and $200s.

The Coupons are payable in the city of Philadelphia on the first days of April and October.

Free of State and United States Taxes.

The price at present is 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

This Road, with its connection with the Pennsylvania Railroad at Lewistown, brings the Anthracite Coal Fields 67 MILES nearer the Western and Southwestern markets. With this advantage it will control that trade. The Lumber Trade, and the immense and valuable deposit of ores in this section, together with the thickly peopled district through which it runs, will secure it a very large and profitable trade.
